

What makes a good parent?

By Samantha Sarnes

A good parent loves you very much. They might not give you everything you want, but that's because some things are dangers and they don't want you to get hurt. A good parent doesn't give you everything you want. They help you with homework. They help you when you don't understand a word when you're reading. They love to see you smiling and laughing. They try to make you laugh, smile and most of all they want you to have lots and lots of fun. They try to keep you safe. They you to feel very special and loved too. They are a great people. They love you more then everyone else.
